Gail Hennessy was born in Wisconsin in the USA, and studied modern oboe in Louisville, Kentucky and Historical Performance Practice at Washington University before travelling to Britain in 1982, where she studied baroque oboe with the late David Reichenberg, and was an apprentice to baroque oboe maker Mary Kirkpatrick. She now regularly plays and records with many of Britain's early music ensembles and teaches baroque oboe at the Royal College of Music. She has made numerous recordings as an orchestral and obligato player and as a soloist.

Reiko Ichise was born in Tokyo and began her musical training as a pianist. She read musicology at the Kunitachi College of Music and came to Britain in 1991, with a foundation scholarship at the Royal College of Music, studying gamba with Richard Boothby. Reiko has performed extensively throughout the UK as chamber musician and soloist and worked with many leading orchestras and early music ensembles. She has recorded chamber music for Lynn, Metronome, ASV and Deux-elles. Since 2001 she has been a core member of Florilegium.

Terence Charlston is widely acknowledged for his engaging and expressive performances and has been described as one of Britain's leading early keyboard players. His career ranges from solo and chamber musician, choral and orchestral director, to teacher and academic researcher. He has toured worldwide and performed with many leading period and modern instrument groups and soloists. He can be heard on over 50 commercial CDs on harpsichord, organ, virginals, clavichord and fortepiano. In September 2007 he was invited to join the staff of the Royal College of Music, London as professor of harpsichord.
